his Knoxville speeches: ills Kooxville speeches:

"There is a debt owing by the United States amounting to $1,00,00,000. These men who are engaged in this conspiring to change our republican government incare empire, say that this debt was created to 'preserve the republic.' Now, what is assumed? Simply, that we must destroy this republic for the purpose of paying the debt, by converting the republe into an empire. My countrymen, before God and this people to-night, I would rather that the republic wate preserved and the debt let go."

Nothing can be more pernicious, nothing more unworthy a statesman, than pandering to vulgar prejudices against the public credit. The public credit is the strength of the government. It is army and navy, for it is that without which an army cannot be put on foot or a navy affoat. It is the highest economy, for the public credit, main-tained at low rates, for all needful purposes. It is the public defence, for high public credit so strengthens a nation that other powers are slow to in-fringe upon her interests or to insult her honor. It is what Burke called chivalry, "the cheap defence of nations," To assail it is to assail the government in its tenderest and most vital part. The money which the government owes to its bondholders, was loaned to it in its greatest extremity. It was not the contributions of the rich OFFICE: NO. IS QUINCY STREET. alone. It was largely the savings of the poor and the blood of the brave. Nothing can be more sacred. Leaving out of consideration all questions of honesty and good faith, it would be the worst possible policy to defraud the men who thus came to the resons of the imperited government. It would add greatly to the danger of future war, and would make them doubly expencrew were not so badly beaten in the sive. Why is it that our bonds to-day University Race as first reported. LIVING POLITICAL ISSUES.

LIVING POLITICAL ISSUES.
From the Chicago Tribune (Republican.)

There never was a period in the history of the country when there was a stronger dealer on the part of the great mass of the people to ignore mere party divisions, and unite in a restoration of the test of good feeling while marked national politics in the years succeeding the war of 1812. There is no abandonament of principle on the part of the people, but there is a universal wearlines and disgust of any further argument and contention upon questions which have been irrevocably settled, and they count have been increased to an investigation of the fall of the proper have a settle have a se choice of representatives continued to turn upon the same considerations, until the war was effectively and permanently closed up by the rehabilisation of the insurgent States, and the re-establishment of popular civil government founded upon the consent of the whole people. But the questions of these times have been decided and decided forever.

We have living questions which must be met. The dead of the past have been buried, and no post mortem examination or Coroner's Inquest is needed. We have other business before us—business of taxation, of finance, questions of political economy, measures of international trade and commerce, questions of internation questions of labor and production, of capital and monopolies, and to act upon these important subjects we want quite another—and, we may add, a superior—class of representatives than those whose sturdy patriolism supplied the lack of general information of capital and the content of the presentatives than those whose sturdy patriolism supplied the lack of general information of the content of the lack of general information of the lack of the lack of general information of the lack of the lack of general information of the lack of the lack of general information of the lack of the lack of general information of the lack of th superior—class of representatives than those whose stardy particitism supplied the lack of general information during the days of rebellion. A good war record, though a valuable addition, will not alone justify the election of a Congressman who is ignorant of finance; who does not know when he votes a tax; who has no taste for study and no talent for obtaining information. Mere party nominations will no longer secure the election of an ignorance, and it ought not todo so. The people are taxed to the uttermost farthing of their earnings, and through the negligence of some, ignorance of others, and adrotiness of a few, these taxes are not levied for public uses, but to give bounties to a favored class. It will not do for men to ask popular favor merely because they have been sound on the issues of the war; the man must also be able to understand that nine-tenths of his constituents are so taxed upon all they eat, drink and wear, that their entire earnings are consumed, while the other tenth are accumulating the entire wealth of the country. The candidate for office at this day who does not, or cannot, understand this fact, and who has no information or knowledge that will lead him to an intalligent vote to remedy it, is no more fit to be elected to Congress, than is the boy fresh from the conficient of the content of the productive or prosperous; but the productive or prosperous; but the productive or prosperous; but the producting labor of the content, for or sgainst the emancipation of the producing labor of the content, for or sgainst the emancipation of the producing labor of the content, for or sgainst the emancipation of the trade and commerce of the motion, or for or or against the preservative of some as that of England. If, by one act be the most expensive measure that therefore settles the question."

The rule here expounded reverses the ordinary presumptions of law and assumes guilt, not innocence. It does not find it necessary to prove a man guilty, but requires him to prove that he is not. In other words, he must proves a negative; which, both in law and common sense, is an absurdity.

Loyalty or disloyalty to the Government, at New Orleans pay the whole cost of sustaining his army and navy while in Oho the remote past. A striking instance of this parties has the case of the Democratic party in Ohio and Pennsylvania, That party is discussing in their Bitsets the propriety of negro suffrage, the expediency of reconstruction, the abolic of slavery, and the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution. In Pennsylvania their candidate is 'a bloated bondholder who pays no taxes,' so that party is discussing in their Bitsets the propriety of negro suffrage, the expediency of reconstruction, the abolic of slavery, and the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution. In Pennsylvania their candidate is 'a bloated bondholder who pays no taxes,' so the sufficient party in Ohio and Pennsylvania, That party is discussing in their Bitsets the propriety of negro suffrage, the expediency of reconstruction, the abolic of slavery, and the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution. In Pennsylvania their candidate is 'a bloated bondholder who pays no taxes,' so the sufficient party is discussing in their Bitsets the propriety of negro suffrage, the expediency of reconstruction, the abolic and the case of the Democratic party in Ohio and Pennsylvania, That party is discussing in their Bitsets the propriety of negro suffrage, the expediency of reconstruction, the abolic and the Copper he are the propriety of negro suffrage, the expediency of reconstruction, the abolic and the Copper he are the propriety of negro suffrage, the expediency of reconstruction, the abolic and the Copper he are the propriety of negro suffrage, the expediency of reconstruction, the abolic and the Copper he are the propriety of n and taxation; while in Ohio their candidate talks largely of the vested rights of the South destroyed by the war; denounces negro suffage in Virginia, for which all Virginian voted; insiats upon paying the debt in greenbacks, and denounces the government for buying the bonds with greenbacks, and is generally unhappy because of the many hio their can and denounces the government for baying the bonds with greenbacks, and is generally unhappy because of the many violations of personal liberty by military arrests during the war. The performances of this party are like those of the old horse, who, in early life, was put at work turning a wheel in the upper story of a mill for grinding tanbark. In the course of time he was released from his secinsion and put into pasture, but his days of usefulness were gone. He forever after moved in a circle, and, even when in the broad field, would have died by starvation, had he not been fed by a nose-bag, from which he ate while he kept walking in the circle, pulling, in imagination, the old wheel-pole of the barkmill. As long as the Democratic party, walks in the accustomed circle, pulling away at negro soffrage, miliary arrests, reconstruction, the Fifteenth Amendment, and repudiation, it must remain hopelessly imbecile in national affairs. So with any other party which falls into the hallucination that it is still grioding the mill of the past. The people are far ahead of mere officeholders and mere office-seekers. The man who earns fifteen dollars a week and requires it wenty to clothe, house and feed himself and family, demands relief, and he recognizes no party allegiance which requires him to vole for Tom, Dick, or Harry, unless Tom, Dick, or Harry propose the means and avow the purpose of so reatoring the revenue system, that taxasion shall be levied for purposes of government and practical questions the people are forming, and before the whirtwind of their united action all those who depend upon the names, relics, traditions and memories of the past will be swept uside to give place to those having the wisdom to grasp the living present.

Horace Maynard, Hamilton Cox, of Shelby, Thornburg, of Jefferson, and other leading Radical Republicans, arrived this morning. They held a meeting this afternoon, and adjourned till io-morrow. The object of the meeting has not transpired. Various aurmless are afloat. One to the effect that they are to take steps for a thorough reorganization of the party, and, as a necessary incident thereto, to demand the removal of all Sauter office-holders in the State. Another, that they contemplate, during Senter's absence, solving the State government. The latter is hardly probable. The mejority of those present are members of the late Legislature.

I was sores all over, literally covered with mast black scales, and so pained in my joints at night, that sleep or rest was utterly imposible. My constitution seemed entirely of ever being cared, having tited many physicians, and used numerous proparations purporting to be remedies, without the least sign of success. But I am now happy to say, that after using those five bottles of your harsaparilia and Dandelion, and only two boxes of the Pills, I became perfectly restored, have returned to my post on the boat, and feel at this time as stout as ever I did in my jills. Flease accept my thanks, and believe me over yours.
